

up summit in Ridgway radio to Ridgway for this t," said Lynn Padgett, Ouray ity commissioner. "This is opportunity for people to an understanding of our cur-broadband issues and ways an improve connectivity on Western Slope."

Significant progress is being e in addressing many of our active broadband issues," ed Pete McKay, San Juan nty commissioner.

gional conferences provide ndees a lot of current inforion in one place, without elling to distant locations."

The event is sponsored by eration: Linkup, a regional lition of governments, non-fit agencies, businesses and ividuals working to improve adband infrastructure, bandlth and services in Colorado.
Government officials, eco-mic development professionals d area businesses will find the ference especially useful in ining a current picture of rural adband development in olorado.

ouncil how the historical sociy's project to save the oldest continually operated newspaper n the Western Slope of olorado has gotten a lot of ational attention.

The NBC "Today Show" was n town taping a story on the newspaper a couple of weeks go. The Standard is still await-ng word on when that story will air, but producer Ian Nenger indicated he is nearly done with final editing.
